STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Rice-Milling Industry (Regulation) Act, 1958, was enacted to regulate the working of rice mills in the country in order that hand-pounding industry which provides large employment to rural population got adequate facilities for development. There has been a growing public demand that rice mills in the country should be brought progressively under co-operative or State management and that provisions should be made for the progressive establishment of control of the community over this important industry. The Act does not contain any provision for giving preference for the public or co-operative sector in the establishment of new rice mills. It is, therefore, proposed to amend the Act to provide that in future preference would be accorded in the matter of grant of permits for the establishment of rice mills to public sector undertakings like the Food Corporation of India and to registered co-operative societies composed exclusively of farmers.

2. Opportunity is being taken to provide for certain other amendments which have been felt necessary on the basis of experience in the working of the Act during the last few years. First, several difficulties have been experienced with regard to the control over small hullers. These hullers are scattered all over the country-side far away from important markets and, in many cases, are run along with other power-driven plants like flour, oil and dal mills or pumping sets, etc., without obtaining requisite permits or licences under the Act. These hullers sometimes operate clandestinely at night making it difficult to check their activities. It is, therefore, proposed to make it clear that attachment of hullers with other power-driven units mentioned above would amount to establishment of rice mills and to tighten at the same time the penal provisions in respect of running of unlicensed hullers. Secondly, it is possible under the Act for existing or new rice mills to stop rice-milling operations for a considerable period and thereby affect the supply position. It is, therefore, proposed to provide that if any mill ceases to operate for a continuous period exceeding one year, it would become a defunct rice mill and would require a fresh permit for recommencing rice-milling operations.

3. The quantum of punishment as provided for in the Act is too inadequate to check the clandestine activities of rice millers/hullers effectively. Even in the cases of gross offences the wrong-doers can get away with a light punishment. It is proposed to provide for more stringent punishment. Further, most of the rice mills are antiquated and use outmoded technology with the result that the outturn of rice from outmoded hullers is much lower than that from sheller-cum-polisher type of mills. Such hullers decrease the availability of rice. Opportunity is being taken to ensure that rice mills both existing and new are equipped with modern equipment and also use modern technology. Moreover, removal of bran popularly known as polishing of rice after its recovery from paddy is also proposed to be covered by the term "milling rice" which at present covers recovery of rice from paddy. This will check unauthorised milling which is done in the name of polishing of rice.

4. The Bill seeks to achieve the above objects

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

By virtue of sub-clauses (1) and (2) of clause 2 and sub-clause (3) (ii) of clause 4, of the Bill, fresh permits for recommending rice-milling operations would be necessary in the case of rice mills which have ceased to carry on rice-milling operations for a continuous period of one year. By virtue of clause 3 which provides that the provisions of the Act shall apply to rice hullers as they apply to rice mills, it would become necessary to obtain permits and licences under the Act in respect of rice hullers. By virtue of sub-clause (3) of clause 5, fresh licences would be required in the case of rice mills which have recommenced rice-milling operations under permits obtained in that behalf. As a result, there may be some increase in the work relating to permits and licences under the Act. It is felt that the existing officers under the Act would be able to cope up with such additional work to a large extent. However, it may be necessary to appoint some additional officers in the Union territories in connection with the administration of the Act. It is estimated that the additional expenditure that is likely to be involved on this account may be approximately as stated below:—

Non-recurring expenditure	..	Rs. 25,000
Recurring expenditure	..	Rs. 50,000 per year.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

Clause 10 of the Bill seeks to amend sub-section (2) of section 22 of the principal Act to provide that rules may also be made under that section in respect of—

- (i) the form in which permits may be granted under the Act;
- (ii) the conditions as to improvements to existing machinery, replacement of existing machinery and use of improved methods of rice-milling subject to which permits and licences may be granted under the Act; and
- (iii) the time within which such conditions shall be complied with.

These are matters of form or detail. The delegation of legislative power is thus of a normal character.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

At present only a few States like Assam, Madras, Kerala and West Bengal have separate legislation in regard to registration of births and deaths, while others have only enabling provisions in this behalf in the Municipal Act, Panchayat Act, Chowkidar Manual or Land Revenue Manual so that the matter is governed by executive orders or bye-laws setting out legal registration procedure. Such a situation, by its very nature, leads to diversity in practices and inefficiency of performance. Various national committees and experts, who gave attention to the problem, have strongly recommended the need for a Central legislation to regulate registration of births and deaths in the country.

2 The Central Government needs adequate and accurate country-wide registration data for purposes of national planning, organising public health and medical activities and developing family planning programmes. Population is one of the most dynamic factors in the present economy of the country but it is here that information on trends furnished by the registration data is very defective and unreliable. The national interest requires an acceptable level of performance by the States and technical uniformity of the methods and standards used in the collection and compilation of data throughout the country. The Government, therefore, consider that in order to develop a sound and unified system of registration in the country, Central legislation is necessary on the subject.

3 The Bill seeks to give legal status to the existing officials in the registration machinery, who are drawn from different departments to look after the registration work in addition to their other normal duties and to bind them in a registration hierarchy with the Registrar-General India, at the Centre and Chief Registrar at the State, running through District Registrars to the village and town Registrars at the periphery. The provisions of the Bill are built closely around the current registration practices where experience of their working in several States has shown them to be practicable and efficient. They unify the existing legal and administrative provisions. They are broad enough to permit State variation in operational details as demanded by the particular characteristics of their respective administrations but are specific enough to ensure development of the system so as to secure a minimum of uniformity and comparability in coverage and efficiency. The Bill lays down specific principles, general lines of action and channels of authority but execution is left with the States, and accordingly details of implementation are relegated to rules to be made by the State Governments with the approval of the Central Government so as to secure a minimum uniformity. The Bill also empowers the Central Government to issue directions to State Governments for implementing the provisions of the Bill when enacted.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

Chapter II of the Bill gives the details of registration-establishment at the Centre and at State, district, municipal and village levels. This establishment already exists, although the specific designations used in the Bill may not be current. The Bill gives a legal status to the various officials in the registration machinery who at present attend to the registration work in addition to their other normal duties. The machinery will thus consist of officials of various departments associated with registration work. The Bill binds them in a registration hierarchy with the Registrar General, India, at the Centre and Chief Registrar at the State, running through District Registrars to the village and town registrars at the periphery. No extra expenditure on account of staff or otherwise will be needed so far as the office of the Registrar-General, India, is concerned. In the case of Union territories, which have no separate Consolidated Fund namely, Delhi, Andaman and Nicobar Islands, Laccadive, Minicoy and Amindive Islands, Dadra and Nagar Haveli and Chandigarh, and in the case of North-East Frontier Agency there will be no expenditure on Chief Registrars, District Registrars and Registrars, since the duties and responsibilities of these offices will devolve on regular officers of the various departments of the territories already in position.

2. A recurring annual expenditure estimated at Rs. 10,000 may, however, be incurred on printing of the registers and statistical reports referred to in clauses 16(2) and 19(2) of the Bill in respect of the Union territories mentioned above.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

Clause 20 of the Bill empowers the Central Government to make rules for the registration of information as to births and deaths of citizens abroad received by the Registrar-General under the Citizenship Act, 1955. The matters to be provided for by rules are merely of an administrative or procedural nature.

Clause 30 of the Bill empowers the State Government in regard to all other matters to make rules, but only with the approval of the Central Government. The matters in respect of which rules may be so made relate, inter alia, to the forms of registers of births and deaths, the period within which and the manner in which information is to be given or notified, the authority who may grant permission for delayed registration and the fees payable for delayed registration, the search of registers of births and deaths and grant of extracts on payment of fees, the period of gestation for classifying a foetal death as a still-birth and the conditions subject to which an offence against the Act may be compounded. These are matters of form, procedure or detail.

The delegation of legislative power is, therefore, of a normal character.
